SNOW DAYS

No school today! Automate the message so that everyone knows. When bad weather means there will be no school, officials need Snow Days to automate the process of contacting everyone with the news.

“No school” days are called for good reason, so it’s important to quickly provide a single clear message to the whole school community. There’s no time to field incoming calls— the best approach is to be proactive. Snow Days provides the means to quickly create custom announcements and automatically contact the entire school community to issue alerts and instructions.

The Simple Way to Implement Efficient School-Wide Notification

- Craft a single clear message for the entire school community
- Automate the process of contacting each student to deliver the message
- Prevent confusion, mixed messages, and an influx of calls to the school
- Leave staff free to deal with other priorities
